President Greater China International Products

Stanley Song is the President for Greater China International Products. He is responsible for the operations and development of Chevron's downstream business for fuels and lubricants in the Greater China region. Chevron's downstream business in Greater China includes a network of service station under the long-standing Caltex brand, fuel supply to commercial, industrial and aviation sectors and the marketing of a comprehensive range of quality lubricant products. Stanley transitioned to his current role from his previous position as General Manager, Products – Hong Kong & South China.

As the Fuels Regional Pricing Manager from 2013 to 2018, Stanley was responsible for developing and executing fuel pricing strategies for retail, commercial, industrial, and fleet businesses, identifying business opportunities and initiating profit improvement measures for the Asia Pacific region. In addition, he is also responsible for providing guidance and support to important business decisions such as tenders, marketing promotions, loyalty and incentive programs and retailer package proposals.

Stanley joined Chevron in 2003 with the Asia Pacific Lubricants business. Over the years, he has held positions of increasing responsibilities. Through his roles as the Regional Business Support Manager, Regional Pricing Manager and Regional Marketing Manager, Stanley accumulated extensive knowledge and experience in the Lubricants business.

Prior to joining Chevron in 2003, Stanley worked with KPMG as a Financial Audit Manager.

Stanley holds a bachelor's degree in Accountancy from Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. He is also a Chartered Financial Analyst.
